permit us to state a few facts illustrating the rising and Noble State! difference in the number of the educated The State Education Society has appointover 20 years of age, who cannot read and unteer their hearty co-operation in this no importance of a system of free common of the 320,000 youths of our State, we ask schools. There are in Indiana upwards of the co-operation of the entire periodical press 320,000 between the ages of 5 and 21, and of the State, and the concurrent co-operation it cannot be denied that thousands of those of all the friends of education in the State. will remain uneducated in the absence of a system of free common schools. Many of their parents are too poor to give them even a common school education, and others are criminally negligent. Of our adult population, there are upwards of 38,000 who cannot read and write, and it is feared that in will please copy. the absence of a better system of common school instruction than we now have, the ratio of the uneducated will increase with fearful rapidity. Such is the intimate connection of ignorance with crime, that the education of the whole people, is to the patriot County and christian a question of the first importance. The following statistics are taken from two able reports; one by Joseph Bentley Esq., of England, and the other by G. R. Porter Esq. The four best instructed counties in England, according to their reports are Rutland, Westminister, Cumberports are Rutland, Westminister, Cumber- Samuel Orr, Treasurer; Wm. Bell, Marshall. Hereford has I school to every 1386 inhabitants, and I criminal conviction per annum to every 596 inhabitants; making in the four latter counties, I criminal conviction per annum to every 550 inhabitants; and in the four former counties, I criminal conviction per annum to every 1108 inhabitants. The educational and criminal statistics of our own country, corrobate substantially the foregoing statements, and show most couclusively that the average amount of crime is almost exactly in the inverse ratio of the average amount of instruc-

A system of free common schools supported by taxation, is certainly the poor man's friend. When schools are supported by subscription, they usually cost, at the lowest estimate, $2 per quarter, for each scholar, and the average is supposed to be $3; so that the man who now sends three children to school one quarter, pays at least $6; but under the proposed free school system, if he has no taxable property; he will pay 25 cents, the poll tax, and thus save IN store and for sale 50 bbl White Lime in goo $5,75. If he has $500 of taxable property, he will pay 85 cents, as follows: 30 cents, State tax; 30 cents; township tax; and 25 he has $1000 taxable property, he will pay $1,45 still saving $4,55. If he has $2000

From the above data, it is evident that the proposed system will lessen the burdens of the great majority of the people of the State It is objected that it is unjust to tax the wealthy for the education of the poor! But if so, it is equally unjust for them to be taxed in proportion to their property for State TO THE VOTERS OF THE STATE OF purposes; but such is the fact, and it is conceded to be the most equitable.
